

50 WAYS UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES PARTNER FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

We're celebrating the 50th anniversary of our college partners by highlighting 50 examples of college-university partnerships - partnerships that build on the strengths of both institutions and lead to increased student success.

Ontario universities and colleges are collaborating on services that enhance the student experience, expand e-learning, create more pathways, and support career success for graduates, as we carry out our shared commitment to meet the needs of the 700,000 students we serve and to help Ontario succeed.

The Student Experience

Whether it's creating a seamless experience for student transfers, streamlining loans, or expanding services for students with mental health challenges, universities and colleges are collaborating for a better student experience.

Innovative Education

Colleges and universities are finding innovative ways to educate our students through online learning and modules, research hubs in inclusive design, and e-textbooks.

Employment Success

From a matchmaking service for employers and graduates, to tracking the success of graduates in the job market, and joint job fairs, universities and colleges are partnering to enhance employment success for graduates.

Joint Programs in Less Time

Numerous joint programs on everything from business, to journalism and health sciences allow students to graduate with both a university and college credential, often in less time.
